An activity guide for Santa Clara County families

Help low-income parents who struggle to give their kids enriching out-of-school learning experiences.

Santa Clara County families—and the caseworkers who support them—have a FREE, easy-to-use search tool to match under-served families with local programs and scholarships.

- Find up-to-date information on 700+ providers offering thousands of after-school and summer programs
- Browse programs that serve students who are low-income, have special needs, or English-language-learners
- Translate results into Spanish, Vietnamese, or Mandarin
- Refer programs to parents via print, text, or email

Access the service at: scc.inplay.org

The service is sponsored by the County of Santa Clara and Santa Clara County Office of Education.

InPlay is a non-profit whose mission is to connect low-income children and youth with out-of-school programs to ignite their individual interests and talents.
